The Year of Popes

Catholic Register Pictures

St. Peter's 262nd successor, Pope Paul VI called himself "apostle of peace," but he knew scarcely a peaceful day in more than fifteen years as head of 700 million Catholics throughout the world. He was born September 26, 1897 at Concesio, Italy and died August 6, 1978 at the Castelgandolfo villa. Pope Paul succeeded Pope John XXIII June 21, 1963 at the age of sixty-five.

He has been throughout the tumultuous years of his pontificate a man of great charity. He suffered greatly, not so much physically, as from those who wounded his heart; he was bitterly criticized by the progressives and traditionalists, but he held the center through it all.

If all were recorded, many pages would be written about him. His tasks were multitudinous and his travels took him many places, and he will be remembered by the prolific words of his pen. Worthy of mention are his seven encyclicals.

In 1964 Ecclesiam Suam discussed the themes of the Second Vatican Council. In 1965 his encyclical was one for prayer for the success of the Second Vatican Council. Also in 1965 Mysterium Fidei was on the Eucharist. In 1966 his encyclical praised the devotion of the Rosary. In 1967 Populorum Progressio, his greatest document was on the Development of People. A second encyclical during 1967 Sacerdotalis Caelibatus, a 12,000 word document reaffirmed the celibacy of the priests. His last encyclical, the most controversial, Humanae Vitae, defended human life and reaffirmed the traditional teaching of the church concerning birth control.

Pope for only thirty-four days, Pope John Paul won the hearts of all when he spoke from the balcony in an informal and unassuming way shortly after his election as the successor of Pope Paul VI, August 26, 1978. September 3 he was installed as Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. On this occasion he quoted the memorable words of St. Paul, "How deep are the riches and the wisdom and the knowledge of God! How inscrutable His judgments, how unsearchable His ways!" Pope John Paul could not fathom the mystery of God's choice for the successor of St. Peter of one who had so little ambition for so exalted a position.

Pope John Paul, Albino Luciani, was born October 17, 1912 in Canale D'Agordo, a little village situated in the Dolomite Alps. He was always characterized as a man who listened carefully to those who spoke with him. His manner was typified by the softness of his voice and his appearance by the easy way he smiled.

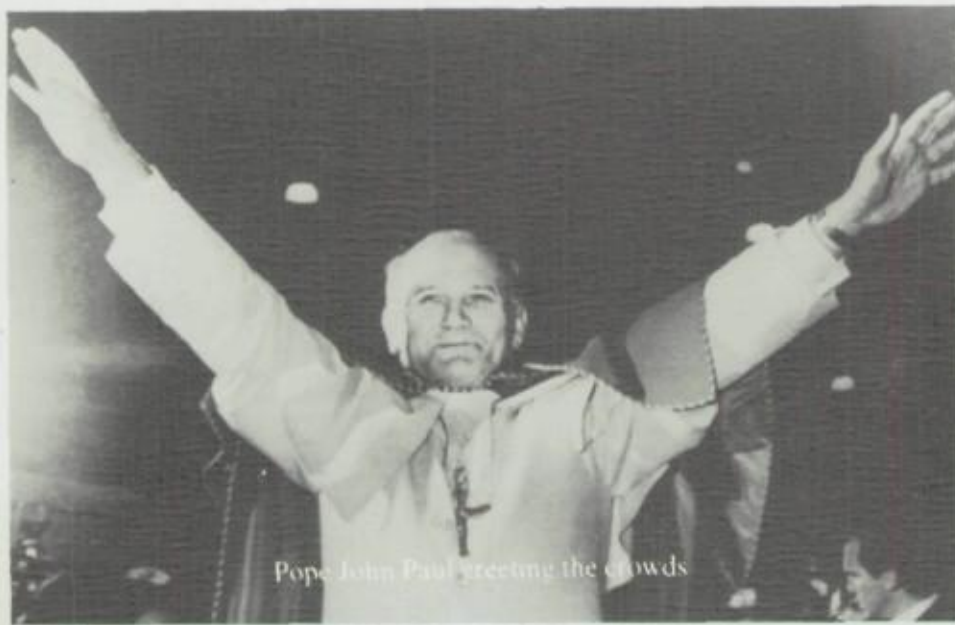

He had little time to distinguish himself as a great Pope for his pontificate was barely a blink in eternity. There were no dramatic changes, but only speculations as to what Pope John Paul intended to do. He expressed his desire "To continue in the true spirit of Vatican Council II, without yielding to those who push too hard or others who drag their feet; promote ecumenism without giving in on doctrine and without hesitation, continue the revision of Church law to conserve intact the church's great discipline."

His hopes and desires were probably many but the legacy he left can be applied to the man himself and summarized as a man who smiled, a kindly priest, who touched the hearts of all, a man of humor, kindness, a humble, pastoral, holy man. The brief glimpse is over for he went to his eternal reward September 29, 1978.

Pope John Paul II

As Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Cracow, many American people, especially the Polish Americans, have memories to cherish and personal stories to share of the Cardinal's visits to the United States in 1969 and 1978. On October 16, 1978, the Cardinal became Pope John Paul II, the 264th successor of St. Peter the Apostle. With the sublime words he told the people after his election: "And so I present myself to all of you to confess our common faith, our hope, and our trust in the Mother of Christ and the Church, and also to begin again on the road, the historic road of the Church, with the help of God and with the help of men."

The quality of mercy is not strain'd. It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven Upon the place beneath: it is twice blest; It blesseth him that gives and him that takes: 'Tis mightiest in the mightiest: it becomes The throned monarch better than his crown; His sceptre shows the force of temporal power, The attribute to awe and majesty, Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings; It is enthroned in the hearts of kings, It is an attribute to God himself; And earthly power doth then show likest God's When mercy seasons justice.

Heaven from all creatures hides the book of fate,
All but the page prescribed, their present state;
From brutes what men, from men what spirits know,
Or who could suffer being here below?
Oh blindness to the future! kindly given
That each may fill the circle marked by Heaven:
Who sees with equal eye, as God of all,
Hope humbly then; with trembling pinions soar;
Wait the great teacher Death; and God adore.

What if the head, the eye, or ear repined
To serve mere engines to the ruling mind?
Just as absurd for any part to claim
To be another, in this general frame;
Just as absurd, to mourn the tasks or pains
The great directing mind of all ordains.
All are but parts of one stupendous whole,
Whose body nature is, and God the soul.

Swedenborg said, "True charity is the desire to be useful to others without thought of recompense." How true this is when one considers the three members of the O'Friel family who are dedicated to Bishop Guilfoyle High School. Fr. Daniel O'Friel is the Associate Principal of the high school. Sr. Clementine is a religion teacher at Sixth Avenue Building; Sr. Cornelia teaches Bookkeeping I and Accounting II at the Pleasant Valley Building. She also manages the bookstore and all the accounts for the school. Bishop Guilfoyle High is proud of the three and hopes they will remain in the school for years to come.

Alexander Pope in Essay on Man wrote: "Heav'n from all creatures hides the book of Fate. All but the page prescribed, their present state, . . ." These words became significant when official word came from the Motherhouse of the Sisters of St. Agnes, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin declaring that the services of the Sisters would terminate in June 1979. The beginning looked so promising when in 1915 Sr. Antoine first started to teach commercial in the Y.M.A. building which is today St. Mary's Memorial Hall. The opening of the high school brought additional Sisters who because of their proficiency and efficiency became the city's famous teachers in the business department. When the Pleasant Valley building was erected, the Sisters of St. Agnes expanded their services in the school by teaching in the English department. It is with deep regret that Sr. Vianney Saller and Sr. Mary Rita Golias will not be listed on the 1980 faculty roster nor will they be replaced by St. Agnes Sisters in the future. Farewell and God bless you, Sisters!

GARVEY MANOR NURSING HOME

For the last few years many students from Bishop Guilfoyle High have given many hours of service bringing joy and happiness into the lives of the Residents at Garvey Manor. Some of the services rendered are:

Visiting the Residents; listening to them.

Assisting them to and from Chapel, dining room, therapies, activities, or whatever they want to do.

Writing letters, reading to them.

Assisting with feeding on the third floor.

Auxiliary dining room or serving in the main dining room and doing little services for the residents.

Assisting with all activities programs.

Stephanie Waclo has been doing a full time volunteer job doing all the above activities. Since she showed such dedication she was hired as part time switchboard operator. Joey Fernicola, another senior, had been devoted to the services also.

I would be true, for there are those who trust me;

I would be pure, for there are those that care;

I would be strong, for there is much to suffer;

I would be brave, for there is much to dare;

I would be friend to all — the foe, the friendless;

I would be giving, and forget the gift;

I would be humble, for I know my weaknesses;

I would look up — and laugh — and love — and lift.

Bishop Guilfoyle hosted the 42nd annual Pennsylvania Association of Student Councils Convention on October 26-28, 1978. More than 600 delegates represented schools from many different states of the Union. The program consisted of discussion and workshop periods stressing the role of Student Council in the school curriculum, leadership qualities, building a lasting school spirit, and relationship to out of school involvement with parents and community projects.

To defy Power
which seems omnipotent;

To love, and bear,
to hope till Hope creates

From its own wreck
the thing it contemplates;

Neither to change,

This, this thy glory
Graduates, is to be

Good, great, and joyous,
Beautiful and free;

This is alone LIFE

Teacher Appreciation Day Is

If you can hear a symphony
When crickets start to sing,
And feel the earth awaken
In the early days of spring.
If you can see God's handiwork
As proof that God endures

Be glad . . .
The hidden wonders
of eternity — are yours!

PARENTS' NIGHT

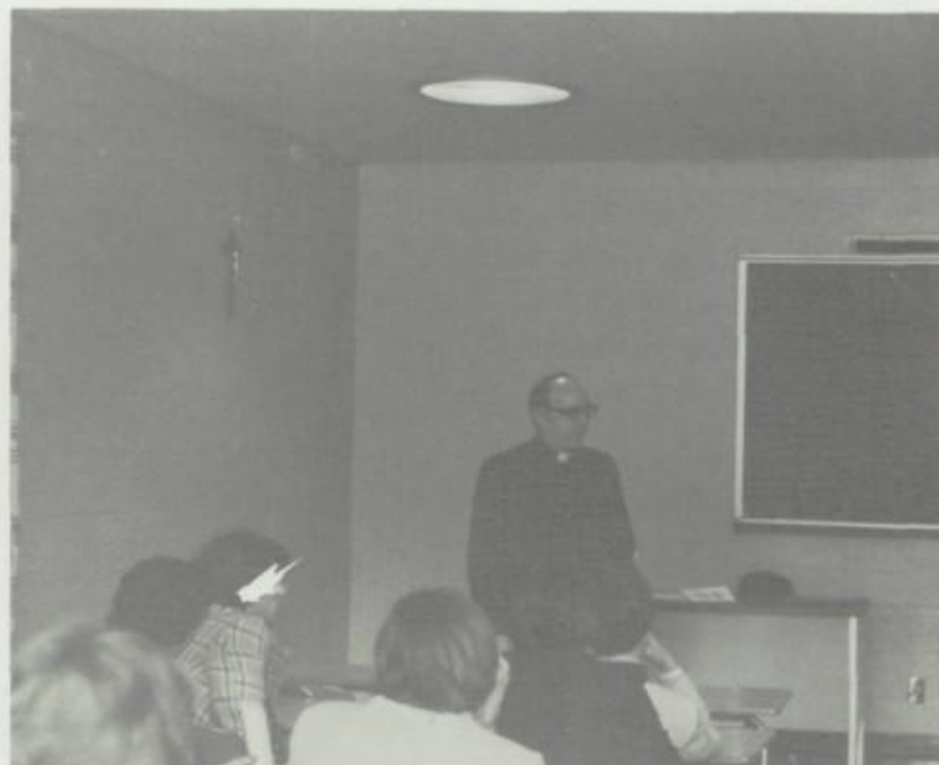

Once a year parents are invited to follow their sons' and daughters' schedules. For a period of fifteen minutes per class, they are told what type of books are used, how assignments are made, how much homework should be done, and what is expected in each class. Finally, parents have the opportunity of meeting the teachers.

Never before has Bishop Guilfoyle High School seen a more competent group of talent work to achieve the high goals that our girls basketball team sought and accomplished this year.

Sitting in the stands was a privilege because one was able to see the intricate but smooth running of a highly trained team. True sportsmanship was seen both on and off the court. The unbelievable talent that the girls had was brought out to an even greater extent when the team was assembled for the District 6 championship. This was a goal never achieved in the history of BGHS Girls Basketball and we are proud to say that we know the young women who brought the goal to reality.

My son, support your father in his old age, do not grieve him during his life.
 Even if his mind should fail, show him sympathy, do not despise him in your health and strength; for kindness to a father shall not be forgotten but will serve as reparation for your sins.
 In the days of your affliction it will be remembered of you, like frost in sunshine your sins will melt away.
 The man who deserts his father is no better than a blasphemer, and whoever angers his mother is accursed of the Lord.

Whoever respects his father is atoning for his sins, he who honours his mother is like someone amassing a fortune.

Whoever respects his father will be happy with children of his own, he shall be heard on the day when he prays.

Long life comes to him who honours his father, he who sets his mother at ease is showing obedience to the Lord. Respect your father in deed as well as word so that blessing may come on you from him; since a father's blessing makes the houses of his children firm.

To the Class of 1979,

Your senior year is marked by the lives of three popes in the history of the Church, all significant and memorable. — Three Vicars of Christ, Teachers of His flock. Of the three, John Paul I instantly caught our hearts. Only after his death does he grasp our minds as we reflect on the few brilliant writings he left us.

Recently I finished reading, Illustrissimi: Letters from Pope John Paul I. His advice to his pen friends is nourishment for us. I offer for your reflection now and in the future as you glance over your Accolade '79 some notions presented in Albino Luciani's letters "To Mark Twain" and "To Pinocchio," two of his many pen friends. The then Cardinal Luciano reminds Twain of his remark that there are three men in each of us: John the First, the man we think we are; John the Second, the man others think we are; and finally, John the Third, the person we really are.

In Cardinal Luciano's interpretation, John the Third is a cook, one of Tolstoy's characters. Outside the kitchen door the dogs were lying. John slaughtered a calf and threw the entrails into the yard. The dogs fell on them, ate them, and said: "He's a good cook; he cooks well." Sometime later John was shelling peas, peeling onions; he threw the husks into the yard. The dogs rushed over, but, sniffing scornfully, they said: "The cook is spoiled; he's worthless now." John, however, was not upset by this opinion; he said, "It is the master who must eat and enjoy my meals, not the dogs. The master's appreciation should be enough for us!"

To his friend Pinocchio, John Paul I says — "The fact is that, in you, I recognized myself as a boy, and in your surroundings I saw my own." He reminds Pinocchio time has lifted the puppet from the pages of fantasy books to a new style of life through television. Pinocchio remains the boy he was, but now the Cardinal recognizes himself in Pinocchio's advisers: Master Geppetto, the Talking Cricket, the Blackbird, the Parrot, the Firefly, the Crab, the Marmot. — The Cardinal then proceeds to offer his own advice to Pinocchio for his future as a young man. If you haven't read Pinocchio you probably won't understand the Cardinal's advice.

"In the journey toward autonomy, like almost all young people between seventeen and twenty, dear Pinocchio, you too will perhaps come up against a tough obstacle: the problem of faith.

You will breathe, in fact, antireligious objections the way you breathe the air at school, in the factory, at the movies, etc. If your faith is a pile of good grain, there will be a whole army of mice to attack it. If it is a suit of clothing, a hundred hands will try to rip it off you. If it is a house, the pickaxe will want to dismantle it, piece by piece. You must defend yourself; today; you preserve only as much faith as you defend.

For many objections there is a persuasive answer. For others, a total answer has not yet been found. What to do? Do not throw away faith! Ten thousand difficulties, as Cardinal Newman said, do not yet make up one doubt.

And bear in mind two things.

First: Every certitude must be respected, even if it is not mathematically evident. The fact that Napoleon, Caesar, Charlemagne existed is not as certain as $2 + 2 = 4$, but it is certain with a human, historical certitude. In the same way it is certain that Christ existed, and that the Apostles saw Him dead and then resurrected.

Second: Man needs the sense of mystery. We know all about nothing, Pascal said. I know many things about myself, but not everything: I don't know precisely what my life is, my intelligence, the degree of my health, etc.; how can I insist on understanding and knowing everything about God?

The most frequent objections you will hear concern the Church. Perhaps a remark reported by Pitigrilli can help you. In London, at Hyde Park, preacher is preaching in the open air, but he is interrupted every now and then by a disheveled, dirty character. "The Church has existed for two thousand years," the character shouts at a certain point, "and the world is still full of thieves, adulterers, assassins!" "You're right," the preacher replies. "But for two million centuries there has been water in the world, and look at the condition of your neck!"

In other words: there have been bad popes, bad priests, bad Catholics. But what does this mean? That the Gospel has been applied? No, that, on the contrary, in these cases the Gospel has not been applied!

My dear Pinocchio, there are two famous remarks about the young. I commend the first, by Lacordaire, to your attention: "Have an opinion and assert it!" The second is by Clemenceau, and I do not commend it to you at all: "He has no ideas, but he defends them with ardor!"

I leave these notions with you and when you reread them in the future pray for the Master Geppettos, the Talking Crickets, the Blackbirds, the Parrots, the Crabs, the Fireflies and the Marmots in your life — and yes, the High School Principal of your life.

Your Brother in Christ,

Rev. James F. Skupien
